Updating Wisconsin RV Park Sanitary Wastewater Requirements

Annual lease RV parks are becoming prolific in Wisconsin. These RV parks contain park model dwellings which contain all of the plumbing amenities of modern homes and therefore generate similar quantities of wastewater. Wastewater from these large RV's is regulated by the administrative rules for campgrounds of old based on 30 gal. per day usage, instead of by the wastewater regulations for comparable one and two bedroom cabins. The USEPA estimates wastewater generation of 50 - 70 gal. per person per day in a residential setting. Wisconsin's outdated usage estimation for RV's presents a real potential to pollute nearby water bodies and degrade their fisheries. The State of Wisconsin should make appropriate administrative rules and statutory changes so that park models and similar units are regulated the same as comparable cabins with respect to wastewater discharge requirements.

Do you support the State of Wisconsin updating the sanitary sewage discharge requirements for annual lease RV parks with park model dwellings to be the same as permanent cabins or dwellings?
