Hello All,

I'm out of the office during that time frame. I've also had the work plan for just a week and haven't had a chance to open it yet. I'm swamped with other projects and spill response; I'm thinking something the following week would work best. Would the 29th work, I'm pretty much open all day.

Thanks

I appreciate you asking. This seems right up my alley as a previous consultant and current role at DNR. Let's figure out how to work together.

Hi Jeff, Jen, and Rob;

I've been reviewing the Wausau PRP's VI source identification work plan and overall it's quite limited. However, I'm not a VI expert or an expert in developing a sampling plan to identify a second VI source when a primary source has already been addressed. I think forming a joint EPA/WDNR VI team might greatly aid the project and lead to us effectively and efficiently identifying and appropriately addressing the VI source. This VI sampling/issue at Wausau has been ongoing for 7 years with no decision or even mitigation systems put in place. My goal is that this team will help EPA gather data sufficient to issue a remedy decision document, likely a ROD, to finally address the VI issue.

To that end, Jeff, Jen, and Rob would any/all of you be willing to join internal roughly monthly calls focused on developing an effective VI source identification strategy? I'll also be inviting some EPA folks with expertise in subsurface source ID, hydrology, and sampling techniques.

Best,
Jeff Dewey
