Hi Paul – So, correction, ALDI isn't buying this property, but they are moving into part of the space formerly occupied by Sendiks. And they plan to do some remodeling to the front of the building, which will likely require some earthwork for foundations, etc. I assume this will require a soil/groundwater management plan. I've already told the ALDI folks that any soil removed should be treated as waste, and they can likely expect to pay for some soil disposal during construction. I'll put something together for your review when I get the final site plan. Let me know if you want to discuss.

Thank you,

Andy,

The 'NR 718 Revised Addendum to the Site Soil Management Plan' dated May 20, 2016 has been uploaded to BRRTS. There is a 'Extent of Known Impacted Soil' figure included in this document.

I believe this is the most recent figure we received depicting the extent of contamination.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

Hi Paul – ALDI is buying the Sendicks grocery store. I see the dot on the BRRTS map for this site is very close to the existing building. Is there a plume map or map depicting the areas of contamination that you could forward or upload?

Thank you,
